ANA EDITOR SPEAKS TONIGHT

The Rev. Dr. R. O. Matthews of Des Moines, Ia., special assistant to the commissioner of prohibition and narcotics, with office at Washington, was yesterday unanimously chosen by the board of trustees of Lincoln Memorial University to be that school's president. This post was left vacant a year ago by the resignation of Dr. George Hubbell. At the same time the board elected Dr. J. Wesley Hill, who has raised an endowment fund of one million dollars for the University, chancellor for life, and elected as trustees William Cooper Proctor of Cincinnati and Milton W. Harrison, vice-president of National Security Owners, New York.

Dr. Matthews is originally from New Jersey. He is a graduate of Syracuse University and after his graduation he spent a year in logging camps and on the plains in Washington, Oregon and Idaho, as a student of practical sociology. For a number of years he was the pastor of three of the largest Methodist churches in the country. St. Paul Methodist Church, of Cincinnati, St. Paul's Methodist Church of Toledo, and the First Methodist Church of Des Moines, Iowa. When the war came on he went on the Red Cross Mission to Europe, immediately following the Second Division, and about the time the Rainbow Division went across. He was on detached service for the army and Red Cross during the war, and so strenuous were his activities in all the major offensives that he was practically an invalid at the close of the war. He returned to America in a wrecked condition but after convalescing under the government's care and after spending a year on the plains of Texas his health was completely recovered.

He returned to Des Moines, Iowa, to accept the vice presidency of a large manufacturing concern, and about a year ago he was appointed special assistant to the commissioner of prohibition and narcotics in Washington, D. C. In this position he has under his supervision about 4,000 men.

Just as soon as he can close his official duties at Washington, he will take up his work at Lincoln Memorial. He hopes to reach Harrogate early in June.

In speaking of his appointment as president of the University and his acceptance of the place, Dr. Matthews said: "I was never an applicant for the place, and I feel highly honored at being called to so great an opportunity for service. The task which I know is a tremendous one appeals to me, and I have accepted the position solely because I want to be of service. I do not expect to work any revolution in the present organization or policies of the university but I want to build up the work gradually."

Dr. Hill, chancellor of the University conferred by authority of the faculty and trustees, the degree of doctor of law upon the following prominent men of the nation yesterday: Thomas H. Adams, publisher of the Morning Commercial, Vincennes, Ind.; Alfred V. Darymple, attorney Fort Worth Texas; William Cooper Proctor, president Proctor and Gamble Co., Cincinnati; Albert H. Smith, president New York Central Railroad; Ira Clifton Copley, congressman, capitalist and publisher, Aurora, Ill.; John Temple Graves, author and orator, Atlanta, editor New York American; Charles Beecher Warren, recent ambassador to Japan, now commissioner for recognition Mexico; Henry Robinson Towne, manufacturer, Yale locks, New York; James Couzens, senator from Michigan; Otto Henry Kahn, New York banker; John Hays Hammond, chairman coal commission, Washington, D. C.; Andrew William Mellon, secretary treasury; John Wingate Weeks, secretary interior; John Harvey Kellogg, president Battle Creek sanitarium; William B. McKinley, senator from Illinois.

Hon. Thomas A. Adams, editor of the Vincennes Morning Commercial, and prominent journalist and war worker, one of the men who received the degree of doctor of laws yesterday, will make an address tonight before the literary societies of the University.

CHICAGO, May 8.—A cold wave of unusual magnitude today brought frost as far south as Northwestern Kansas. Snow in Chicago where cherry trees are in bloom, is predicted. Snow and sleet fell in Minnesota, Illinois and Iowa today. A May blizzard is reported from Ashland, Wisconsin.

HEALTH EXHIBIT
IS POSTPONEDWill Be Held in Central School June
11-16—No Building Available
Now

The Health Exhibit which was to have been held May 17, 18 and 19, under the auspices of the local Red Cross has been postponed until June 14, 15 and 16, because there was no place available in which to hold it. At this time school will be out and Supt. J. W. Bradner has promised to give over the central school building for the exhibit.

It had been intended to hold the exhibit in the vacant building formerly occupied by Shelburne Drug Co. However, this room is not papered and the committee in charge found that it would cost so much to put it in order that it would be inadvisable to hold it there.

Another reason why the postponed date is considered more advantageous is that it will directly precede the Community Chest drive to be launched July first. With the added room in the school, too, children's conferences may be held in the various rooms and the exhibit can be held on a bigger and more satisfactory scale.

KENTUCKY FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS TO MEET

By Associated Press

WINCHESTER, May 7.—Leading club women of the country are on the program of the twenty-ninth annual meeting of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs which will be held here May 15 to 19. Among the prominent speakers will be Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and Miss Florence Dierck, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Women's Clubs and director from her state in the General Federation.

Several innovations in the four-day program have been announced for this year, including "Governor's Night" on Wednesday May 16, and a round table discussion Friday afternoon when any one present may talk ten minutes on any subject near his or her heart. Among the visitors expected for the convention will be a number of high officials of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Interest in the coming meeting centers in the election of officers as three women already have announced for the presidency. A third vice president and auditor also will be elected. A number of social events have been planned for the meeting with the Winchester Women's Clubs, the M. C. Club of Winchester and the Kiwanis Club furnishing entertainment.

WALLINS WOMAN
KILLED SATURDAYMrs. Laura Erwin Shot By Rosa
Williams, Enemy of Long Standing—Death Instant

HARLAN, May 8.—Mrs. Laura Erwin was shot and instantly killed by Miss Rosa Williams at Creech mine, near Wallins Creek Saturday evening. The two women had been enemies for more than two years and the shooting was the culmination of the old grudge.

Miss Williams met Mrs. Erwin at the company store and is said to have followed her home, the two exchanging hard words. It was reported here that Mrs. Erwin went into the house and got a pistol and appeared at the door when Miss Williams opened fire.

Three bullets entered Mrs. Erwin's body on the neck, head and in the chest. Death resulted almost instantly. Mrs. Erwin leaves a husband and two small children. She was buried Sunday afternoon in Wallins cemetery.

NATIONAL CLUB
WOMEN MEETRepresentatives of Two Million in Atlanta This Week—To Support
Many Reforms

ATLANTA, Ga., May 8.—Active support for the child labor amendment, the uniform marriage and divorce amendment, the education and public welfare bill, restricted immigration and provision for a federal prison for women will be asked of the 2,000,000 club women of America whose representatives assembled in mid-biennial Council here May 7th-11th.

In addition the Council is expected to go on record favoring the establishment of an international court of justice for the promotion of permanent peace, and the suppression of the traffic in narcotics which is said to have reached an alarming state.

"Women as a Spiritual Force" will be convention slogan. In choosing this Mrs. George Minot Baker of Concord, Massachusetts, program chairman said:

"Underlying all practical work of the organized women of America is a deeper power than mere service. The foundation of all service must rest upon the belief in spiritual things, not the spirit of theology but the deeper spirit which is the impulse and inspiration of life and which is created and developed by the truest qualities of the heart and soul. We cannot build upon the sands of materialism."

EIGHT INITIATED BY ELKS AT HOME HERE LAST NIGHT

Eight candidates from Middlesboro, Pineville, Corbin and Harlan were initiated into the Order of Elks here at the meeting here last night. Dinner was served to those present and music was furnished by the "Kentucky Jazz Hounds" Middlesboro orchestra.

Those initiated into the mysteries of the order last night were J. P. Lantz, Harlan; T. M. Garrett, Pineville and F. L. Brodren, I. W. Jones, R. L. Ross, W. R. Ellison and J. R. Hubbard of Corbin. Another class will be initiated at the meeting of May 21.

City—Officers Find No
Trace of PerpetratorsFIRE ALARM OF UNKNOWN
ORIGIN IS POSSIBLE CLUE

HARLAN, May 8.—Harlan citizens were startled last night about 9 o'clock to see, on the highest point just above the town, a burning cross, fifteen feet high, made of sticks, and made of sticks, and made of sticks.

As soon as the cross was noticed a party composed of the sheriff and deputy sheriffs went up to where it stood. They found the cross made of poles, wrapped with sacks and saturated with gasoline. To it was attached a hundred-foot fuse. The party of officers searched the hill and the countryside roundabout, but not a trace of the perpetrators of the burning cross could be found. They shot the cross down and returned to town baffled as to its origin.

The only clue unearthed in Harlan is that an unknown person entered a rooming house on Main street last night just about the time the cross was first noticed and turned in a fire alarm to central. When the exchange girl called back to find out where the fire was, she could get no one and nothing further of this "fire" developed.

GET BIG STILL
NEAR PINEVILLENine Hundred Gallons Beer, Sixteen
Fermenters Also Taken, No
Arrests Made

Nine hundred gallons of beer, sixteen fermenters and one sixty-gallon copper still were captured by W. B. Saylor, federal prohibition officer at Melbourne, about one mile from Pineville yesterday afternoon. It is said that the still is the property of Spruill Bowman, alleged slayer of Fred Howard, who is in jail at Pineville. He has not had a hearing on the liquor charges.

The officers met with no resistance when they confiscated the distilling apparatus and the beer. Those assisting Mr. Saylor in the raid were George Van Beher, Doc Green and Charlie Stewart.

SERGEANT WOODFILL, HERE THIS WEEK, WORLD'S GREATEST HERO

More thrilling than fiction are the stories of the hairbreadth escapes and marvelous feats of Samuel Woodfill, pronounced by Gen. Pershing to be the greatest individual hero of the world war. Sergeant Woodfill is in Middlesboro now in the interest of recruiting for this section.

On the morning of October 12, 1918, after a night of machine gun fire and barrage from the enemy, he and his men were ordered to go over the top. A deadly machine gun fire greeted this move and the men of the company, all unaccustomed to actual combat, took shelter in shell holes. Woodfill was then a seasoned soldier and a man of great resourcefulness in time of imminent peril. In the thickest of machine gun fire, he made his way to cover and to a position where he could locate the gun crew.

With his rifle, revolver and plenty of ammunition handy he raised up to take aim at the machine gunners who were near at hand. A gunner made an attempt to spot Woodfill but the latter was the quicker and dispatched the Hun. He then picked off the other five gunners before they could get his range. A runner, attempting to get to the rear, fell before the American's 15.

A second gun position was destroyed while his men were crawling through the undergrowth in a veritable inferno of shell fire. Working faster than his men, the leader gained a position to the rear of another gun crew. One

FIRST PROGRAM OF
CHAUTAUQUA GOODHawaiians Entertain Well Last Night
—Concert Company With Classical Program Tonight

Vicerra's Hawaiian Entertainers gave a delightful program of Hawaiian music last night as the opening number of the Piedmont festival chautauqua. Supt. J. W. Bradner opened the meeting by introducing Miss Irene Friend, platform manager for the chautauqua who in turn introduced the evening's entertainers.

The program consisted of singing, playing Hawaiian music and several dance songs by the pretty Hawaiian girl in the group. The performer on the steel guitar received great applause for his part in the program, particularly in solo work. A special feature was an instructive talk on Hawaii.

The Kendree Concert Co., a trio of artists, will furnish the entertainment tonight. Their broad repertoire includes violin, vocal and piano solos, duets and ensemble numbers, including a number of classical and semi-classical selections. The opening number will be Scotch, with the company dressed in Scotch plaids. The Highland Fling with its accompanying bagpipes will be a feature of this part of the program.

TEACHERS MAKE DEMAND OF ORGANIZED WOMEN

By Associated Press

ATLANTA, May 8.—The teachers of America intend to make ten definite demands of the organized women of the country. The list will be presented to the council of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, now in session here, by Josephine C. Preston, president of the National Educational Association, and reads as follows:

Better living conditions for teachers. Reorganization of pioneer district plan around natural neighborhood or community centers.

Consolidation of schools around neighborhood centers.

Part-time education supplemented by agricultural project work as set forth in the Federal Vocational School plans.

Rural sanitation for health.

Building of a fundamental rural life.

Co-ordination of social agencies for rural advancement.

Establishment of rural libraries, and the employment of a qualified, competent, well-trained, well-paid teacher in every rural school.

EIGHT AMERICANS STILL HELD BY CHINESE BANDITSJAIL SENTENCE
FOR MONTGOMERYPrescription Whiskey Doesn't Agree
With Man Who Brought It
To Local Patients

Lonnie Montgomery was convicted in police court this morning for unlawfully having liquor in his possession on May 2. His punishment was fixed by the jury is a $100 fine and thirty days in jail. The punishment carries with it a $1,000 peace bond. The ten bottles of prescription whiskey were exhibited to the jury.

Officers H. E. Ball, A. D. DeBosh and Herbert Ball testified that they found the suitcase containing nine bottles of whiskey in the defendant's possession when he left the train. A similar bottle containing a small quantity of liquor was found in the defendant's pocket.

J. W. Montgomery testified that the prescription had been issued to him for medicinal purposes. All the labels bore the name of Dr. H. L. Gragg. Directions on the bottle were for "one wine glassful three times each day."

The real question for the jury to decide was whether or not the whiskey was for medicinal purposes, according to the instructions given the jury. Men constituting the jury were: R. M. Barry, F. R. Whalin, W. M. Copes, J. L. Purcell, P. M. Parsons and H. M. Davidson.

POLICE SEARCH IN VAIN FOR OLD HEN AND BROOD MONDAY

Police officers spent a good portion of their time yesterday in vain efforts to locate the abductor of an old hen and eighteen small chickens which were stolen from Tom Wardrup Sunday night. The old hen and her brood were taken from their house at the rear of the Wardrup home. No trace of the thief has been found.

Indictment—Technicalities of Statutes Involved

By Associated Press

FRANKFORT, May 8.—The court of appeals upheld the dismissal of the indictment against Bowling Green Athletic club on charges of conducting a baseball game on Sunday. The opinion by Judge Rogers Clay threw out the case on insufficiency of indictment. The question whether statutes allow baseball games on Sunday was not touched upon in opening. The indictment did not state the date or approximate date of the offense or even recite, as statutes provide it be committed within twelve months before judgment on this indictment. The court upheld this was essential to indictment.

Caught Fire From Pipe

By Associated Press

GEORGETOWN, May 8.—Coroner Ashurst stated today that investigation disclosed there was no grounds for the theory of foul play in the death of Mrs. Joseph Vance, 51, whose body was found in a field near her home five miles from here yesterday. He believes she fainted, fell and her clothing caught fire from a pipe she was smoking. She was found by a neighbor with the upper part of her body burned.

MEN ACCUSED OF HELPING JAIL DELIVERY DISMISSED

Upon motion of County Attorney T. G. Anderson, the case against Shell Brady, Thomas Dunn and Tom Hensley, charged with assisting prisoners to escape from the city jail, was dismissed.

The trio, whose actions before and after the escape of Tip Long and Jim Harrell from the city jail, seemed suspicious to officers, were arrested Friday afternoon and placed in jail.

A THOUGHT

Ye are the salt of the earth; but if the salt have lost his savor, wherewith shall it be salted?—Matthew 5:13

HOW MIDDLESBORO HONORS A HERO

A little more than six years ago our country entered into the World War with the avowed purpose of "making the world safe for democracy." With an abundance of brass bands and patriotic speeches and loud cheering the best of our country's young men were recruited and sent to war with tearful reassurances that their sacrifices would never be forgotten and that the name of everyone of them would be emblazoned in letters of light upon the nation's roll of fame.

That war lasted nineteen months, till the signing of the armistice, and during this time our every thought was the war. Soon after the armistice came the reaction. Our nerves, keyed up to thinking war, dreaming war and living war, swung back like the pendulum, and since then there seems to have been but one central thought with us, and that to forget the war and all connection with it.

Such a policy may be all right for us, but what of the thousands of young men who went into the army to "make the world safe for democracy"? Some of them gave their lives, many of them gave their limbs, their health and their best strength, all of them gave months or years in the best period of their lives, and all of them sacrificed self for our comfort. Have we the right to push them so far from our minds, if we think what the outcome would have been had they practiced our same policy six years ago?

In our city this week is the man recognized by General Pershing as the World War's greatest hero, Sergeant Samuel Woodfill. To Sergeant Woodfill and his fellow soldiers we owe a debt that can not be repaid. Yet, in this city of ours there has been no movement of recognition of this brave hero, no dinner or entertainment of the kind that the cheery politician or self-looster, as a visitor here, would have been tempted. If any one even cares that he is here, it has not been demonstrated.

Not that Sergeant Woodfill seeks homage—the contrary he shies from publicity. But we like fair play and honor where honor is due, and we are not proud of our city for this reception of so great a man.

NERVE EXPLOSIONS
Do you ever sit up in the morning "out of the wrong side of bed" and find everything goes wrong during the day? Buttons come off. Shoes break. Breakfast toast is scorched. The street car is late and packed to the doors when it does come, so there's no seat for you.

As the day progresses, it seems that there's a conspiracy afoot to make you miserable. All the truce walkers and half-wits in the world manage to get in your way.

The Ajax follows. Fingers are clumsy, refuse to obey your brain readily, and you break things from dishes to pencil leads.

The mailman apparently has joined the conspiracy. He brings the wrong kind of letters—disappointments, bills. Everything is out of sort. Like the

Irish soldier, you decide "everybody's out of step but me."

Most of us have enough of the superstitions lurking in our brains to make us believe that bad luck is shadowing us on the days when everything goes wrong.

The simple truth is, our nerves are on edge, probably due to something we ate the day before, or to our blood pressure being too low or too high.

Life in such times seems more aggravating than usual. But the trouble is in ourselves, not in life or the people we encounter. They average about the same, day in and day out.

For instance: We saw a man rush into an office building. As he went through the revolving door, he decided that the party in front of him was a slow-moving moron, so he swung the door viciously in an obvious attempt to knock down the stranger in his path. Nerves. Meeting the same stranger under similar circumstances next day, the man (if feeling normal) probably would trail the stranger placidly through the door and maybe pause to borrow a match and exchange the time of day and home brew recipes.

We have simply lost control of our nerve force. The pipes are leaking, eager to explode.

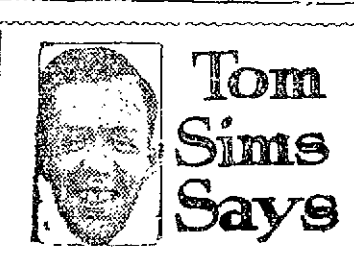

What can we do about it? Well, for one thing, we can keep ourselves under control by a determination to maintain a placid and easy-going state of mind. Rejection of the whole day's dole from the first yielding to anger when the button comes off as we start to dress. The more we yield, the more we allow ourselves to become irritated, the higher the pressure mounts in our internal mechanism.

Questions
ONE—If in swinging at a third strike, the ball touches the person of the batsman and goes to the grandstand, what happens?
TWO—Have base runners the right to advance on such a play?
THREE—Does the infield fly rule apply with a runner on first base and less than two out?
FOUR—If a base runner after reaching second, decides to run back to first, what is his status and how can he be retired?
FIVE—If a base runner in stealing second, reaches the base in safety, over-slides, and is retired, does he receive credit for a stolen base?
Answers
ONE—If while attempting a third strike, the ball touch any part of the batsman's person he is out.
TWO—Base runners cannot advance on a missed third strike which comes into contact with the batsman's person, the ball becomes dead.
THREE—The infield fly rule does not apply with a runner on first only. There must be runners on first second or first, second and third and less than two out.
FOUR—He can be retired by being touched with the ball, or by holding the ball on the base that he was entitled to, which was second.
FIVE—If a base runner over-slides a base that he is attempting to steal and is retired, he does not receive credit for a stolen base.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESS-COTT TO HER MOTHER, MRS. JOSEPH HAMILTON

Oh Mother dear, I had no idea that things were so expensive. At the prices you have to pay for things now I expect you have got a million dollars worth of furniture in yours and Dad's house.

I don't know how I am going to furnish our apartment even with all the beautiful wedding presents for four thousand dollars, and the money you and Dad gave me is all the money I have.

Jack hasn't saved a cent but he seemed to think I had the resources of the First National Bank to draw upon. He even wanted me to let him have a thousand dollars of that money to pay on a block of stock he had been buying of the concern.

He was terribly grouchy because I said that you had given that money to me to furnish our home and that you would be annoyed if I used it for anything else.

He told me that I ought to furnish the whole apartment for a thousand dollars. Anyway we might save a little money out of our windfall to invest. Then, Mother dear, I was nasty—I really was so tired, you know. I reminded him that he had saved no money out of a good salary and I doubted if he knew how expensive things were since the war.

He just said, "Huh" again and asked if I were ready for dinner. I told him yes, although I knew I was looking like a tramp. I went down stairs but I could not eat.

Already I was beginning to think that I had paid too much for the apartment but Jack wouldn't allow me to ask him anything about it. He said that I was a married woman and I should have some idea of what money would buy, that he was getting five thousand dollars a year and that should tell me what we could afford. As nearly as I can find out, four thousand won't buy anything you want.

Do you know that when I came to rent an apartment I had some sort of vague feeling that one might pay a fifth of one's income for rent. It seemed to me I had read that on some woman's page in the newspaper.

That only meant a thousand dollars a year.
Mother, did you ever see the apartments that are advertised for thousand dollars a year? When I saw them I almost wished I had never got married.

I did not see one that didn't need redecorating and they were small and the bedrooms opened on the courts. I thought of my great airy bedroom at home with its sleeping porch and Jack's nice hotel room. I knew he would be as unhappy as I.

Mother, I am going to tell you something I have already learned about this marriage business.

You have got to have something besides just the kind of love that sweet-hearts have to make it a success.

Your loving DAUGHTER.

SAVING OF OLD SHINGLES URGED

Head Of Sales Force Of Roofing Co. Gives "Tip" To Home Owners Of Country

Home owners planning to repair or recover their shingle roofs this spring are urged to save their old shingles in the interest of economy, cleanliness and comfort, in a statement issued yesterday by J. M. Berdan, general manager of the building material department of Johns-Manville, Inc., following a survey of the roofing situation conducted through the company's 58 branch offices.

"Of the 25,000,000 buildings in the United States," said Mr. Berdan, "not quite 5,250,000 still have wooden roofs. Of these wooden roofs, our field agents report that nearly a million are in need of repair, on account of the fact that many of these repair jobs have been long deferred. Just how the owners of these roofs go about having the work done, particularly in the midst of the greatest building boom since 1909, will depend the expenditure or saving of a large sum of money.

"The conventional method, in giving a house with shingles a new roof is to rip off the old shingles, and to lay the new roof on the old furring strips. This means musing up lawns and shrubbery, filling the upper floors of the house with dirt and dust, and running the chance of getting caught in a sudden storm with no roof on the house. In addition of course, is the cost of the labor for ripping the shingles off.

"These risks and expenses can be avoided by laying the new roof right over the old shingles. Whatever the material of the old roof, whether asphalt or wooden shingles, the new roof will be cheaper to lay and will offer a better insulation for the house; making it cooler in summer and warmer in winter. The additional weight is easily supported, though in some cases it may be necessary to brace the rafters.

"Home owners will spare themselves trouble and money by leaving the old wooden shingles in their places."

I. O. O. F. NOT TO BUILD NOW

High Price Building Materials Makes Postponement Erecting New Home Necessary

On account of the high price of building materials the Oddfellows have postponed the erection of their new building until next year. This course was agreed upon at a meeting held by the lodge last night.

While a larger lodge room is needed by the Oddfellows and other fraternal orders which meet there, they can use the same building for another year. Their original plan was for a three-story brick building with the first story for store rooms, with the second for apartments and the third for a large lodge hall.

Executives of the lodge are confident that building supplies will be lower in price next year and they were unanimous in the proposition to delay work on the building until that time.

W. A. GASTINEAU GARAGE ALMOST COMPLETELY REMODELED

The old building on Nineteenth street used by the W. A. Gastineau Motor company is being completely remodeled. The walls of the large building are made almost entirely of glass. Concrete floors are being made to the sales room at the front. The machine shop of the garage will be at the rear.

CHICAGO LEADS IN NEW BUILDINGS

Greater Relative Gain Shown Than In Any Other City In United States

CHICAGO, May 8.—Building construction in Chicago is showing a greater relative gain than in any other large city. Parts of this gain is due to the settlement of labor troubles and part to relieving the housing shortage. However, an article in the current issue of the American Contractor, by Frank Emerich, points out another reason for Chicago's gain. It shows that Chicago gets its structural steel nearly 20 per cent cheaper than New York. Says Mr. Emerich's article, "Chicago buy its steel for considerably less money than does New York, although under normal conditions the steel prices in Chicago and New York are precisely the same.

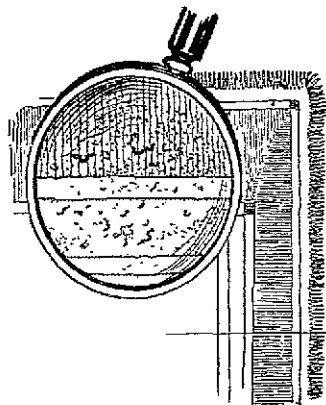

"Steel prices in these two cities are the same normally because of the 'Pittsburgh plus' system of steel pricing.

"That is, without regard to where the steel is produced the normal steel price is the price at a Pittsburgh mill, plus the amount of money which would be required to haul the steel from Pittsburgh to the place where it is to be used."

Mr. Emerich's conclusions are based upon a comparison of prices on structural steel contained in the following table of steel prices for delivery at mills' convenience, given in the Iron Trade Review, in its weekly issue of April 12:—

Structural Shapes
Chicago—Per Cwt.	$2.40 to $2.50.
Average.	$2.45.
Pittsburgh—Per cwt.	$2.45 to $2.75.
Average	$2.60.
Philadelphia—Per Cwt.	2.775 to $3.075. Average $2.925.
New York—Per Cwt.	$2.79 to $3.09. Average $2.93.
Soft Steel Bars.
Chicago—Per Cwt.	$2.30 to $2.40. Average $3.35.
Pittsburgh—Per Cwt.	$2.35 to $2.75. Average $2.55.
Philadelphia—Per Cwt.	$2.675 to $3.075. Average $2.875.
New York—Per Cwt.	$2.60 to $3.00. Average $2.89.

HOW MIDDLESBORO HONORS A HERO

A little more than six years ago our country entered into the World War with the avowed purpose of "making the world safe for democracy." With an abundance of brass bands and patriotic speeches and loud cheering the best of our country's young men were recruited and sent to war with tearful reassurances that their sacrifices would never be forgotten and that the name of everyone of them would be emblazoned in letters of light upon the nation's roll of fame.

That war lasted nineteen months, till the signing of the armistice, and during this time our every thought was of the war. Soon after the armistice came the reaction. Our nerves, keyed up to thinking war, dreaming war and living war, swung back like the pendulum, and since then there seems to have been but one central thought with us, and that to forget the war and all connection with it.

Such a policy may be all right for us, but what of the thousands of young men who went into the army to "make the world safe for democracy"? Some of them gave their lives, many of them gave their limbs, their health and their best strength, all of them gave months or years in the best period of their lives, and all of them sacrificed self for our comfort. Have we the right to push them so far from our minds, if we think what the outcome would have been had they practiced our same policy six years ago?

In our city this week is the man recognized by General Pershing as the World War's greatest hero, Sergeant Samuel Woodfill. To Sergeant Woodfill and his fellow soldiers we owe a debt that can not be repaid. Yet, in this city of ours there has been no movement of recognition of this hero, no dinner or celebration of the kind that the cheap politician or self-booster, as a visitor here, would have been readied. If any one even cares that he is here it has not been demonstrated.

Not that Sergeant Woodfill seeks homage on the contrary he shrinks from publicity. But we like fair play and honor where honor is due, and we are not proud of our city for this recognition of so great a man.

NERVE EXPLOSIONS

Do you ever get up in the morning "out of the wrong side of bed" and find everything goes wrong during the day? Buttons come off. Shoelaces break. Breakfast toast is scorched. The street car is late and packed to the doors when it does come, so there's no seat for you.

As the day progresses, it seems that there's a conspiracy afoot to make you irritable. All the naive walkers and half-wits in the world manage to get in your way.

The Jim follows. Fingers are clumsy, refuse to obey your brain readily, and you break things from dishes to pencil leads.

The mailman apparently has joined the conspiracy. He brings the wrong kind of letters—disappointments, bills. Everything is out of sort. Like the

Irish soldier, you decide "everybody's out of step but me."

Most of us have enough of the superstitions lurking in our brains to make us believe that bad luck is shadowing us on the days when everything goes wrong.

The simple truth is, our nerves are on edge, probably due to something we ate the day before, or to our blood pressure being too low or too high.

Life in such times seems more aggravating than usual. But the trouble is in ourselves, not in life or the people we encounter. They average about the same, day in and day out.

For instance: We saw a man rush into an office building. As he went through the revolving door, he decided that the party in front of him was a slow-moving mutton, so he swung the door viciously in an obvious attempt to knock down the stranger in his path. Nerves. Meeting the same stranger under similar circumstances next day, the man (if feeling normal) probably would trail the stranger placidly through the door and maybe pause to borrow a match and exchange the time of day and home brew recipes.

We have simply lost control of our nerve force. The pipes are leaking, eager to explode.

What can we do about it? Well, for one thing, we can keep ourselves under control by a determination to maintain a placid and easy-going state of mind. Rumination of the whole day dates from the first yielding to anger when the button comes off as we start to dress. The more we yield, the more we allow ourselves to become irritated, the higher the pressure mounts in our internal mechanism.

Questions

ONE—If in swinging at a third strike, the ball touches the person of the batsman and goes to the grandstand, what happens?

TWO—Have base runners the right to advance on such a play?

THREE—Does the infield fly rule apply with a runner on first base and less than two out?

FOUR—If a base runner after reaching second, decides to run back to first, what is his status and how can he be retired?

FIVE—If a base runner in stealing second, reaches the base in safety, over-slides, and is retired, does he receive credit for a stolen base?

Answers

ONE—If while attempting a third strike, the ball touch any part of the batsman's person he is out.

TWO—Base runners cannot advance on a missed third strike which comes into contact with the batsman's person, the ball becomes dead.

THREE—The infield fly rule does not apply with a runner on first only. There must be runners on first second or first, second and third and less than two out.

FOUR—He can be retired by being touched with the ball, or by holding the ball on the base that he was entitled to, which was second.

FIVE—If a base runner over-slides a base that he is attempting to steal and is retired, he does not receive credit for a stolen base.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESS-COTT TO HER MOTHER, MRS. JOSEPH HAMILTON

Oh Mother dear, I had no idea that things were so expensive. At the prices you have to pay for things now I expect you have got a million dollars worth of furniture in yours and Dad's house.

I don't know how I am going to furnish our apartment even with all the beautiful wedding presents for four thousand dollars and the money you and Dad gave me is all the money I have.

Jack hasn't saved a cent but he seemed to think I had the resources of the First National Bank to draw upon. He even wanted me to let him have a thousand dollars of that money to pay on a block of stock he had been buying of the concern.

He was terribly grouchy because I said that you had given that money to me to furnish our home and that you would be annoyed if I used it for anything else.

He told me that I ought to furnish the whole apartment for a thousand dollars. Anyway we might save a little money out of our windfall to invest. Then, Mother dear, I was nasty—I really was so tired, you know. I reminded him that he had saved no money out of a good salary and I doubted if he knew how expensive things were since the war.

He just said, "Huh!" again and asked if I were ready for dinner. I told him yes, although I knew I was looking like a tramp. I went down stairs but I could not eat.

Already I was beginning to think that I had paid too much for the apartment but Jack wouldn't allow me to ask him anything about it. He said that I was a married woman and I should have some idea of what money would buy that he was getting five thousand dollars a year and that should tell me what we could afford. As nearly as I can find out, four thousand won't buy anything you want.

Do you know that when I came to rent an apartment I had some sort of vague feeling that one might pay a fifth of one's income for rent. It seemed to me I had read that on some woman's page in the newspaper.

That only meant a thousand dollars a year.

Mother, did you ever see the apartments that are advertised for thousand dollars a year? When I saw them I almost wished I had never got married.

I did not see one that didn't need redecorating and they were small and the bedrooms opened on the courts. I thought of my great airy bedroom at home with its sleeping porch and Jack's nice hotel room. I knew he would be as unhappy as I.

Mother, I am going to tell you something I have already learned about this marriage business.

You have got to have something besides just the kind of love that sweet-hearts have to make it a success.

Your loving DAUGHTER.

HOMESICKNESS CAUSED PAYNE TO WRITE IMMORTAL SONG

Home, Sweet Home!

I

'Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam,
Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home!
A charm from the sky seems to hallow us there
Which, seek through the world, is never met with elsewhere!

Home, home! Sweet, sweet Home!
There's no place like Home!
There's no place like Home.

II

An exile from home, splendour dazzles in vain!
Oh give me my lowly thatched cottage again!
The birds singing, the daisies that came at my call—
Give me them— with the peace of mind, dearer than all!

Home, home! Sweet, sweet Home!
There's no place like Home!
There's no place like Home.

John Howard Payne /
Washington City, Sept. 13, 1841

For Luna J. Pitt Esq.

JOHN HOWARD PAYNE'S ORIGINAL WRITING OF "HOME SWEET HOME". THE BACKGROUND IS THE HOME THAT HE LONGED FOR WHEN HE WROTE HIS INSPIRED CLASSIC.

NEW YORK, May 3.—One hundred years ago a young American composer—John Howard Payne—stood at a window of his London apartment. He was homesome. Three thousand miles separated him from his home, and the great distance from the beloved cottage at East Hampton, L. I., gnawed at his heart. He watched the crowds, gay, colorful, throngs in the street below. Finally, he could stand it no longer. Payne, who then was 32, crossed the room, sat at his desk, and the words that he drew from his soul have lived ever since as "Home, Sweet Home."

"Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home!"

Payne, a man of the world despite his years, meant that.

Unite in Celebration

And now one hundred years after the homesome man wrote the words destined to be repeated at one time or another by every English speaking man or woman in the world, musicians of England and America are uniting in celebration.

"Home, Sweet Home" was but one number in a musical offering "Clari, the Maid of Milan" but it is the only number to survive.

The impression once held that Payne who wrote the words was a "homeless author," and down-and-out, has been shattered a long time. He was far from that.

Born in 1791 in New York city, Payne entered Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., at an early year. While there, as editor of a magazine, he wrote a poem called "Home, Dear Home." It was this poem that was rewritten years later, into the one we all know.

Became Actor

Payne soon developed a liking for the stage. His parents objected, and he turned his talents to theatrical writing.

When he left college, his parents were bankrupt. No longer did he deny the call of the stage. Virtually his first appearance at the old Park Theatre, New York, was a complete success. In a short time he sailed for London, the first American actor to invade that country.

Once, there, however, he developed an ability to write plays and soon abandoned acting altogether. "Brutus" a tragedy, with Edmund Keen in the title role, was a tremendous success. Other productions followed. Those so filled him with confidence that he turned to producing—and in a short time found himself in the Fleet street jail for a debt of $7000.

Then he wrote "Theresa, the Orphan of Geneva," and with the proceeds cleared his debts and gave him something over and above.

It is now that we meet "Home, Sweet Home." For "Clari, the Maid of Milan," was his next effort, which he sold for $1250.

Writes Masterpiece

He composed "Home, Sweet Home" on a dull September day. And while the play was written for profit, the words of the one song in it that has survived came from his heart. They were inspired.

On May 8, 1822, it received its first rendition before a small London audience. The city went wild. Payne's name had gone down indelibly into the future.

The music of "Home, Sweet Home" generally is credited to Henry B. Bishop. Payne has said it is an adaptation of an Italian folk song he heard a maid of Italy humming.

At the age of 61, Payne died in T. N. N.

In 1882, 30 years after his death the remains were brought back, and buried in his beloved native soil, the land about which he wrote.

And so, on this hundredth anniversary, "Home, Sweet Home" is being played in every theater in the land, millions of homes and is being broadcast from the giant radio station at Schenectady, scene of his college days.

CEMENT INDUSTRY TOPS ALL OUTPUT RECORDS

Production of portland cement during March was unusually heavy for this season of the year. Mills of the country produced nearly 9,000,000 barrels, almost 2,000,000 barrels more than in February and nearly 50 per cent more than in March, 1922. Production for the quarter ending March 31 was considerably more than 25,000,000 barrels, as compared with an average of slightly over 17,000,000 for that quarter during the five-year period, 1919-1923.

Shipments from the mills during March, 10,300,000 barrels, established a high mark for that month and were more than 4 per cent greater than in March, 1922. For the first quarter of the year shipments were 21,500,000 barrels, a quantity greatly in excess of the amount moved in any similar period and approximately 54 per cent higher than the average for the five-year period, 1919-1923.

Stocks in finished cement in manufacturers' hands decreased about 450,000 barrels for the month, or less than 4 percent.

It is impossible to state how much of the amount shipped during the first three months has actually been used. From the usual amount of winter construction which has been carried on, it is safe to assume, however, that the quantity used is greater than in any similar period. It is also a fact that greater quantities than heretofore have been stored up by highway departments of a number of states, contractors and others in order to avoid transportation difficulties which are expected to increase when the active construction season opens.

Enduring Quality, Attractive Appearance and Moderate Cost

Here's a Roofing Record of Interest To You

The oldest roofs in the country, covered with ready-roofing are all Ruberoid Roofs.

This unique distinction which Ruberoid Roll-roofing enjoys is due to two facts. First, Ruberoid was the first ready-roofing on the market and thus was granted unusual opportunity to establish records for longevity. Second, its quality is so high that it was able to take full advantage of the opportunity.

There are many Ruberoid roofs, still in splendid condition, which were laid when Ruberoid was first sold, nearly thirty years ago. Other ready roofings may last that long. Ruberoid has!

An uncounted number of Ruberoid roofs have withstood fifteen, twenty and twenty-five years of service without indicating the limit of their endurance.

Ruberoid Roll-roofing is furnished in two styles—Smooth-surfaced (grey) and Mineralized (covered with green or red slate). Either gives unexcelled service on the roofs of factories, warehouses, mills, foundries, and other industrial buildings.

NEXT FEW MONTHS DECIDES FUTURE OF AUSTRIA

By William P. Sims

VIENNA, May 7.—Whether Austria is to live or die will be determined during the next few months.

Incidentally, the League of Nations will soon have flung the lie into the face of those who dubbed it a rope of sand, the impracticable dream of a visionary. That is, if Austria survives.

If Austria succumbs the league will have lost its first big case and will have received a very considerable blow.

Late in April or during May the Austrian minister to London, G. Franzenstein with former Russian Minister of Finance (czarist regime) M. Bark, and Commissioner Nixon, of the League of Nations, plan a visit to America. They are coming to sound out the money market with respect to Austria.

Already this commission has visited the capitals of Europe—London, Brussels, Rome, the Hague—on a similar mission.

Richest Indian

JACKSON BARNETT

MI'SKOGEE, Okla., May 6.—Richest Indian in the world!

Jackson Barnett, "restricted Indian" of the Creek tribe, has an annual income of $60,000 from property with valuable oil rights. Because of this wealthy redskin's status as a "restricted Indian," his property and its income are under the guardianship of the government.

Barnett will receive a refund of a quarter of a million dollars from the government, following a recent ruling by the Internal Revenue Department that "restricted Indians" were exempt under income tax laws.

COOPER BROS. BIG CIRCUS
COMING HERE TOMORROW

Cooper Bros. Combined Shows have so many great, high-class features that no other show can now compare with them in giving such general satisfaction. The great success attained by the Cooper Bros. Shows is due to the fact that they are always first to secure novelties of merit. The trained wild animals of this show have been selected with great care and are the best in the world, showing such wonderful intelligence in their different acts that they seem almost human. Cooper Bros. show is spoken of by the press and public as being clean, moral, of the highest class. Remember you make no mistake by going. Two performances daily, afternoon and night at Middlesboro, Wednesday, May 9.

Everybody loves horses and ponies. More especially does this side of shows apply to the ladies who with the little ones are the most loyal patrons. They are assured of the highest form of entertainment free from everything at all calculated to offend the most sensitive. The performing elephants and rare wild beasts, Banty Bunny, the cute little baby elephant, the good night pony, together with the many prancing ponies in military drills and marches are especially pleasing to the little ones. The funny clowns, the many beautiful lady artists, the feature acts by the world's greatest gymnast, Mlle. Roberts, in her death defying act in mid-air, the like of which has never been witnessed, will live long in memory when many other shows have faded away into forgetfulness.

Washington Letter

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Perhaps in preparation for a strenuous time through the 13 months preceding the next Democratic national convention, Senator Oscar Underwood of Birmingham, Ala., is putting in the laziest vacation of anyone mentioned as a 1924 presidential possibility.

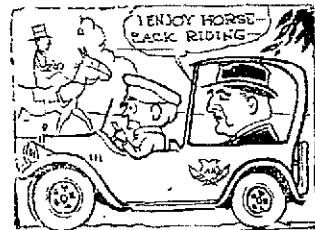

Oscar and Mrs. Underwood are enjoying "complete rest" at Funchal, Madeira, some 400 miles of the west coast of Morocco. No politics, no questions about the League of Nations, not even the news about the G. O. P. schism over the world court, penetrates the all-pervading peace of his retreat.

Life in Funchal, the Underwoods have written friends here, is peaceful and primitive. When they wish to go riding they are tucked into baskets swung between two oxen—a sort of wicker hammock affair. This equipage covers a mile in something less than an hour. As exercise it is slightly less but imparts about the same up-and-down-back-and-forth motion. Once accustomed to this mode of conveyance, one is forever immune to sea-sickness.

Which, caustic observer who do not view the Underwood boom enthusiastically announced, may be the explanation of Oscar's sojourn in Funchal. Maybe he's getting all set for a tempestuous trip up Salt River!

Had you noticed that as a horseman President Harding is a very good golfer?

When the president essayed equine exercise shortly after entering the White House all the photo service took pictures of him on his prancing steed and the news associations sent out and the news association sent out stories on how he thrilled to the zest of an early morning gallop along the verdant bridle paths.

But somehow the executive interest in horseback riding has seemed to wane. When he goes for a ride now it is usually in the White House Pierce-Arrow. Perhaps he prefers gregarious sports, where more comradeship and companionship are possible. Perhaps the fact that Bill Borah is abroad each morning on the bridle paths may have had something to do with it.

However, as proof that he still loves horseback riding, President Harding's name leads the list of box-holders for the annual Capital Horse Show, May 15-19. Here the capstons steeds of official and social Washington will be put through their paces and one may enjoy riding without the discomfort of having to do it oneself.

The latest presidential boomlet discernible above the Washington horizon is that of Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, former secretary of treasury. Being from Virginia, Glass is, of course, a Democrat. It is said in his behalf that he would carry the endorsement of former President Wilson. That might or might not result. Wilson himself hasn't said so.

In one respect Glass would have the jump on Harding. Glass owns two newspapers, Harding only one. Physically small, Glass fails to fill the eye or the imagination as a popular candidate.

The sudden death of Senator Knute Nelson, while en route from Washington to his home in Alexandria, Minn., leaves just one octogenarian in the United States Senate—Carroll S. Page of Vermont.

The next oldest senator—also from Vermont—William P. Dillingham who will be 80 next December, succeeds Nelson as head of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

MIDDLESBORO DAILY NEWS

"I am very much pleased with this job," said one our customers as he paid for the printing which we had done for him.

A pleased customer means more to a business than any other factor. It means service and quality in what the business has to sell.

Lin of Rose Hill visited in Ewing Thursday.

Joe Hounsshell had the misfortune of being hit by a car driven by R. C. Graham Wednesday afternoon. He fell on the tender and rolled to the ground but escaped serious injury. Mr. and Mrs. Hounsshell were walking along the road, and upon meeting the car took different sides of the road, but just as the car was starting to pass Mr. Hounsshell started across the road. The accident was unavoidable.

Mrs. Ed Rice, Miss Jeanne Ruesky and Miss Gladys Bakes of Middlesboro are visiting relatives here.

The baseball team of Ewing, 1st baseman with some enthusiastic fans, moved to Flatwoods Thursday to play one game of the tie in the championship series. Since the Flatwoods High School has closed, the game was scattered and the game was not played although they expect to play later.

W. P. Nash of Gibson Station was here Thursday.

M. O. Combs, county treasurer, was here from Jonesville Thursday.

M. S. Thompson was painfully injured Tuesday when he was thrown from a mule which he was riding. Mr. Thompson, who is an L and N Road way operator here, has been off duty since the accident.
